Adjournment Hopes Killed In Congress

Leaders Working To End Session Early Next Week

By JERRY T. BAULCH

WASHINGTON (AP) - Wrangling over pork barrel legislation plus maneuvers for a pension plan killed hopes Friday for congressional adjournment this week. But the two biggest remaining measures were untangled from

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D - Mont., obtained unanimous consent for the Senate to skip Saturday's session-once planned as the windup-and to meet again on Monday. The House went ahead with plans for its Saturday session in order to act on the foreign aid money bill. Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., asked Mansfield how many more days Congress might stay in session. The Democratic leader replied that it might extend "anywhere from next Tuesday to next Saturday or beyond.'

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D - Mont., obtained unanimous consent for the Senate to skip Saturday's session-once planned as the windup—and to meet again on Monday. The House went ahead with plans for its Saturday session in order to act on the foreign aid money bill.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., asked Mansfield how many more days Congress might stay in session. The Democratic leader replied that it might extend "anywhere from next Tuesday to next EN ROUTE WITH KENNEDY AP)—President Kennedy blasted Republicans as a party without a program Friday night and declared that only by electing a Democratic Congress can this country get moving again. Taking his campaign directly into enemy GOP territory, Cincinnati, Kennedy said of the Republicans: "They have made the word 'no' a political program but I believe in the word 'yes.''

There was no question that the crowd's sentiment did not completely match the President's. Presidential Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said police captain Gaynor Mills estimated the crowd's size as 80,000. For as he spoke, Kennedy

"Less profile, more courage, blockade Cuba.

Blames Republicans It apparently was in a direct answer to this silent but conspicuous heckling that Kennedy said: "The last administration paid no attention to Latin America for eight years-and we have paid the price.

But mostly Kennedy kept to the weekly campaign parades which will take him all over the country by Election Day, Nov. 6: to do his best to see that the Congress remains Democratic.

At a rally at the Greater Cincinnati Airport, across the Ohio River in Kentucky, Kennedy put in a plug for Wilson W. Wyatt, Democratic candidate for Senate, and said: "I have spent the last two years on issue after issue affecting the welfare of the people

Larry is a fullback. You ought to see him finding those holes in the line . . . driving off tackle . . . slashing through the secondary. Oh, Larry has scored a dozen touchdowns! But he can't kick an extra-point! The cross-bar is too high, the goal posts are too far away.

Just give Larry a year or two-with lots of practice. Then we'll win those close ones . . . 7-6 . . . 14-13 . . . 21-20!

Never worry about failure when its cause is being overcome. Don't lower the goal . . . keep trying. Grow stronger. You'll reach it!

That's one of the lessons of life that Larry has learned on Sundays when he goes to church with his family . . . one of many lessons that help us achieve our best every day of the week.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest facto on earth for the building of char acter and good citizenship. It is storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither de vive. There are four sound reason services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For bir own sake. (2) For his children' sake. (3) For the sake of his com munity and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which port. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Larry is a fullback. You ought to see him finding those holes in the line . . . driving off tackle . . . slashing through the secondary. Oh, Larry has scored a dozen touchdowns!

But he can't kick an extra-point! The cross-bar is too high, the goal posts are too far away.

Just give Larry a year or two-with lots of practice. Then we'll win those close ones . . . 7-6 . . . 14-13 . . . 21-20!

Never worry about failure when its cause is being overcome. Don't lower the goal . . . keep trying. Grow stronger. You'll reach it!

That's one of the lessons of life that Larry has learned on Sundays when he goes to church with his family . . . one of many lessons that help us achieve our best every day of the week.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .
ALL FOR THE CHURCH The Church is the greatest fact earth for the building of char ecter and good citizenship. It is rehouse of spiritual values. With out a strong Church, neither o mocracy not civilization can sur services regularly and support th Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children: munity and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material sup larly and read your Bible daily

'Cuban Patriots Must Be United

Accelerated conversion of Cuba into a Soviet base has touched off a fresh wave of activity by anti-Castro Cubans.

Their protest against enslavement is carried forth even though every wall in Cuba now has ears, and drumhead justice abounds on the island. Such courage in the face of overwhelming might and repression merits the admiration

The anti-Castro weakness, however, lies in fragmentation. The hastily devised unity council that preceded the 1961 invasion effort failed to survive the fiasco. Central to its failure were broken communications with the anti-Castro underground inside Cuba.

The acknowledged leader of this force at the time was Manuel Ray. Yet of all in the ruling council he was least consulted.

It is understandable, then, that Manuel Ray should retain little confidence in future attempts to liberate Cuba by amphibious assault. He chooses instead to rely on "a war inside Cuba fought by Cubans." The prospects of such a venture against Soviet-supplied armor and rockets are dubious at best. Manuel Ray also seems to place illusory hopes on wholesale defection in Castro's armed militia.

Nevertheless, by their devotion to their country's freedom, Manuel Ray and his followers have proved worthy of attention and respect. Of paramount concern now is the establishment of unity among Cuban patriots at home and

Mississippi

Great issues may seem to appear with suddenness but they generally prepare for decades or even centuries. The rioting and bloodshed over the registration of James Meredith, a Negro, in the University of Mississippi, will solve no American and no universal problem

At issue is a Constitutional question. The issue is the irreconcilability between the Tenth and the Fourteenth Amendments to the Constitution. The Tenth Amendment withholds from the Federal Government many of the responsibilities and authorities which most ans of this generation assume are within its scope; the Fourteenth Amendment, passed after the Civil War, is really a development of the Fifth Amendment, and deals with the rights of citizens, grants to the Federal Government some responsibilities and authorities which the Tenth Amendment withholds

The Tenth Amendment reads:

"The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or

The Fourteenth Amendment reads:

"All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside. No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws."

The Governor of Mississippi functioned under the Tenth Amendment; the President of the United States under the Fourteenth. This conflict has not been resolved by the Mississippi incident; it has been intensified. For some areas of the South still live with the memory of the Civil War and the Reconstruction Period when they were, at times, actually governed by Negroes, Race prejudice is an unsolvable human problem. It exists everywhere. It is even practiced subconsciously by those who regard it as immoral, particularly in the matter of intermarriage. It is an emotional response to difference, to disunity within the family, to social stature, to local acceptability. In some areas, its roots are in history and tradition; in others it is the absurd attitude of those who seek to avoid unpleasant competition. But at the core of the problem is always intermarriage.

This does not apply to Negroes alone. I witnessed it in old China, where northern Chinese resented southern Chinese (the Hans v the Yangs). It existed for centuries among Jews as Sephardim regarded themselves, without historic justification, as superior to Ashkenazim. It exists in Harlem where West Indian Negroes regard themselves as superior to deep-South

This sense of status will not be eliminated from the human subconsciousness by Constitutional Amendments, Acts of Legislature, or the use of power by a President. It is a problem in education and therefore its correction must be gradual. How long is gradual? Anti-Semitism has existed since the Maccabees.

There have been nations which accepted one type of racial mixture but rejected another. For instance, the Portuguese since the days of Henry the Navigator (1394-1460) accepted Negroes as equal human beings, provided they became Roman Catholics. Spain, which could persecute the Jews and the Moors, freely intermarried with Indians in the New World. On the other hand, Hindus and Moslems have remained prejudiced against each other throughout modern Indian history and are so today. In fact, the whole of Indian sociology is based on prejudice, namely, the caste

One does not need to justify what exists. It is only necessary to understand it. The role of the American Negro is indeed difficult and unfortunate. Except for a few who have become scholars or entertainers, most Negroes do not have equality of opportunity which is the social concomitant of the Capitalist System. Thousands of Negroes pass as whites every year.

There are exceptions like Booker T. Washington, George Washington Carver, Ralph Bunche and so on. But the exceptions only prove that the status of the Negro is unequal

The answer to the problem is education. The fact is that the Negro that is kept in ignorance and squalor remains a burden on the entire population. New York, which can produce many Negroes capable of serving in the highest positions, also can show the most abject poverty and miserable living in its Negro population. How long can this country evade its own minority

WASHINGTON - The Senate's No. 2 Democrat, hustling Hubert Humphrey, stormed out of a secret State Department meeting in a cloud of purple oratory the other morning after listening to all he could stand of a wishywashy report on Cuba.

What started the nouvelle vague craze in French motion pictures was not so much what it had namely, youth, love, and ideas but what it didn't have - namely, money, stars, and frequently even sets, or scripts.

Many of the earliest nouvelle vague movies were shot in real streets and real restaurants, not so much because those were the best places to shoot them, but because the director and producer frequently the same guy, had no dough to shoot them elsewhere. All these lacks added immeasureably to the early nouvelle vague films a quality of truth and authenticity and, above all, a sort of breathless living quality. Possibly the most famed of the nouvelle vague films was named "Breathless" and it had that sort of caught-in-the-act, gee-what-arethey-going-to-do-next? feeling.

Poverty was not there by design but by accident. The moment the nouvelle vague directors got suc-What was it? We suspect a viral cessful, they too were burdened infection, a malignant form of with money, with stars, with bankers, and with big budgets, and it has seriously affected their style, given them new and not necessarily better directions, and brought about a good many compromises

One quality that the old (sounds like a contradition in terms) nouvelle vague had was a casual naturalness. In the dialogue and in the acting and in the direction, there was an avoidance of strain. A line which strained to be funny was anathema.

There was a terribly casual attitude toward sex in such pictures as "Jules et Jim" and "Breathless" that was characteristic of this whole French generation. Just as they were terribly wrapped-up in the authentic sounds of talk and of love, the nouvelle vague were superbly indifferent to the technical details which, I think, absorb Hollywood directors almost to the total exclusion of everything else, including story and acting. If it suddenly got dark in his films, Jean Luc Godard cared not at all, provided it seemed true

All these things I found and still find refreshing in French pictures, but it's odd that the French nouvelle vague have no great respect for their French directors. The great gods of the movement are exclusively foreigners, mostly Americans Many of their gods I find incomprehensi-

The Macmahon, which is the current avant-garde cinema club, worships such directors as Raoul Walsh, Fritz Lang, Otto Preminger, and Joseph Losey. Losey, an obscure American director, has made an enormous splash in foreign avant-garde circles, in England as well as here.

While the nouvelle vague started here, the French feel it is spreading to other countries and they carefully watch the work of such directors as the American John Cassavetes, whose "Shadows" was much admired, Karal Reisz, whose "Saturday Night and Sunday Morning" exemplified the French nouvelle vague attitudes towards sex and the rat race of life, and also the American Leslie Stevens. John Frankenheimer was felt to be part of the group, but the French feel he has abandoned them and is turning out old-fashioned, big-budget pictures with stars and all the lights on.

Not every god remains one. When a god falls out of the heavens, he is likely to fall right down into eternal blackness, deeper than hell itself. Ingmar Bergman was a god two years ago; he's through as far as the French nouvelle vague are concerned (even the French bourgeois critics are cutting up the Swedish master these days). The night editor of a newspaper that suddenly had suspended publication had to come home and break the bad news to his wife and three small boys. In fact, this was the second enterprise that, through no fault of his own, had collapsed and stranded him within a year, and he could not disguise his discouragement.

The boys said nothing, but when the editor awoke and walked into the dining room the next morning, he found spread on the table, a poster, with rough lettering that proclaimed, "We believe in you, Dad!" Onto it the three lads had poured the contents of their individual savings banks.

A sturdy lad asked his father, "Do you know if Mary's lamb followed her to school every day? "That she did," said Father. "And how," pursued the lad, "did it all end?" "They finally separated," said Father. "The lamb graduated."

Moral force isn't, of course, mere pacifism or non-resistance as against the basic law of self-preservation. Moral force is the combined power of individuals who are ready to make the su-

But to convey truth requires crackling, the Minnesota Senator called for "a program of action" to overthrow Dictator Fidel Castro. He urged adopting the same tactics the Red guerrillas have used against the United States in Laos and South Vietnam.

"Why don't we exploit the disaffection in the Cuban army?" he demanded. "We are doing little or nothing to work with the officers who are opposed to Communism.

"I want to be very frank," he added. "There may be a lot of things going on that I know nothing about. I hope and pray to God there are. But if there are not, we need an explanation.

Then, waggling a finger at the uncomfortable Martin, Humphrey warned: "Look, my friend, haven't said this on the floor of the Sentae, but I will unless something happens.

Then he turned on his heel and marched out. As he neared the door, Oregon Sen. Wayne Morse grabbed his hand and whispered huskily: "Thank God!"

Mimeographed Praise As Congress draws to a close and the hot air mass over Capitol Hill disperses to the 50 states, Republican Senators are packing their brief cases with handy mimeographed introductions for anyone who may be called upon to introduce them.

The Senators want to be sure no toastmaster will be at a loss for laudable words.

The canned introductions, prepared by the Senate Republican policy committee, take their from John L. Lewis's adage: "He that tooteth not his own horn, said horn will not be tooted.

The longest introduction, 10 pages of self-glorification, was written for Pennsylvania Sen. Hugh Scott. It starts off with a pun about his determination "not to let the opposition come off scot-free.

Then it launches into a long biographical background, mentioning that he was editor of his Sunday-School newspaper and adding this bit of history: "Hugh Scott holds the distinction of driving the first U.S. Navy jeep into Tokyo at the beginning of the occupation of Japan."

The toastmaster is supposed to wind up with these stirring words about Scott: "He is a man who displays an alert awareness of the problems of everyday people. To him it is not enough to have made a living; to him it is one's duty to make a life. Modern Lincoln

Wisconsin Sen. Alexander Wiley, the Claghorn of the North, is compared in his mimeographed introduction with Abraham Lin- (Copyright, 1962, By the Bell Syndicate)

coln. It holds him up (Wiley, not Lincoln) as an example of "the opportunities offered in this land of liberty to all its citizens, if they will but work and grasp

The toastmaster, after using phrases that might also fit George Washington, is supposed to conclude:

"A family man, the father of four children, and the proud husband of a beautiful wife-a man who will not sacrifice ideals to expediency-who believes in the greatness and leadership of his beloved country-Senator Alexander Wiley-Alex to his friendsserves as an inspiration to all Americans.

The introductory remarks about Sen. Karl Mundt, the South Dakota sandman, paint him more as a J. Edgar Hoover than Abraham Lincoln. Nevertheless, they all but nominate him for a spot on Mount Rushmore alongside the carved faces of Washington, Lincoln and Jefferson.

The presiding officer is supposed to conclude: "In view of this fine record, I am sure you can understand what I mean when I refer to the greatness which has attained to the name of Sen. Karl E. Mundt.'

Vermont Sen George Aiken A modest man, is hailed in his prepared introduction as the author of a bold book entitled: "Pioneering with Fruit and Berries."

But his Vermont colleague, Sen. Winston Prouty, is extolled for leading "a struggle to block passage of oleomargarine proposals." Rural TV

Colorado Sen. Gordon Allott takes credit for bringing television to remote areas "by legalizing TV boosters."

In other introductions, Nebraska Sen. Carl Curtis boasts of receiving the Luther Medallion from Luther College at Wahoo, Neb., and Utah Sen. Wallace Bennett claims to teach a weekly Sunday-School class.

North Dakota Sen. Milt Young is praised for his policy "of trying to see everyone who calls at his office.'

Indiana Sen. Homer Capehart is glorified as a onetime traveling salesman for the J. I. Case Plow Company, and Maryland Sen. J. Glenn Beall boasts of taking 'an active part in politics.'

Delaware Sen. John Williams is called "Whispering John," one of the Senate's "most quietly effective members." Also praised for being quiet is Kentucky Sen. John Cooper whose "quiet competence embraces activities of great depth

For toastmasters, the words and music are ready. All that remains is for them to pick up their horns

BACKDOOR POLITICS - Ever prominence. It reports that Yates will be given a federal judgeship if he should be defeated by Dirksen in November. This, too, is denied in Washington, but confirmation would be hard to come by because some lawyers believe it to be illegal, as well as unethical, to offer inducements of this kind to candidates for public office. It's hard to say whether the rumor was started by friends or enemies of Yates. Enemies could have started the story to further discredit his chances of winning, knowing that the voters rarely cast their ballots for a man whom they believe hasn't got a chance.

On the other hand, his friends may want to demonstrate that he really is Kennedy's choice -so much so that the President is willing to take care of him in the event he is "retired" from politimany jokes then as now.

There must be millions of persons behind the Iron Curtain who know they cannot rely on themselves but must seek the guidance of a higher being. There must be many millions on this side of the Iron Curtain who are ready to crusade for truth and the rightness of their cause. *War and its bloodshed may come again, as it has in the past, but man can pray persistently to God for guidance and have faith in the willingness of a supreme being to bring light to a darkened world. War comes as a result of the acts of misguided cliques and regimes. Peoples have been slow to exert their concerted power to establish their will without combat.

Moral force may some day be better understood than it is today. It is significant, however, that men in high places are constantly praying to God for guidance, even as our forefathers did when nearly two hundred years ago they made their sacrifices and founded the American republic.

The New Masters

By John Crosby

PARIS

What started the nouvelle vague craze in French motion pictures was not so much what it had namely, youth, love, and ideas but what it didn't have - namely, money, stars, and frequently even sets, or scripts.

Many of the earliest nouvelle vague movies were shot in real streets and real restaurants, not so much because those were the best places to shoot them, but because the director and producer frequently the same guy, had no dough to shoot them elsewhere. All these lacks added immeasureably to the early nouvelle vague films a quality of truth and authenticity and, above all, a sort of breathless living quality. Possibly the most famed of the nouvelle vague films was named "Breathless" and it had that sort of caught-in-the-act, gee-what-arethey-going-to-do-next? feeling.

Poverty was not there by design but by accident. The moment the nouvelle vague directors got successful, they too were burdened with money, with stars, with bankers, and with big budgets, and it has seriously affected their style, given them new and not necessarily better directions, and brought about a good many compromises.

One quality that the old (sounds like a contradition in terms) nouvelle vague had was a casual naturalness. In the dialogue and in the acting and in the direction, there was an avoidance of strain. A line which strained to be funny was anathema. There was a terribly casual attitude toward sex in such pictures as "Jules et Jim" and "Breathless" that was characteristic of this whole French generation. Just as they were terribly wrap ped-up in the authentic sounds of talk and of love, the nouvelle vague were superbly indifferent to the technical details which, I think, absorb Hollywood directors almost to the total exclusion of everything else, including story and acting. If it suddenly got dark in his films, Jean Luc Godard cared not at all, provided it seemed true

All these things I found and still find refreshing in French pictures, but it's odd that the French nouvelle vague have no great respect for their French directors. The great gods of the P. the cinema lovers, worshipped at the shrine of Jean Renoir, Roberto Rosselini, and Alfred Hitchcock. The Macmahon, which is the current avant-garde cinema club, worships such directors as Raoul Walsh, Fritz Lang, Otto Preminger, and Joseph Losey. Losey, an obscure American director, has made an enormous splash in foreign avant-garde circles, in England as well as here. While the nouvelle vague started here, the French feel it is spreading to other countries and they carefully watch the work of such directors as the American John Cassavetes, whose "Shadows" was much admired, Karal Reisz, whose "Saturday Night and Sunday Morning" exemplified the French nouvelle vague attitudes towards sex and the rat race of life, and also the American Leslie Stevens. John Frankenheimer was felt to be part of the group, but the French feel he has abandoned them and is turning out old-fashioned, big-budget pictures with stars and all the lights on,

Not every god remains one. When a god falls out of the heavens, he is likely to fall right down into eternal blackness, deeper than hell itself. Ingmar Bergman was a god two years ago; he's through as far as the French nouvelle vague are concerned (even the French bourgeois critics are cutting up the Swedish master these days). Another early enthusiasm of the French young film enthusiasts was Federico Fellini. Today they hate him as the symbol of old vague corruptionbig budgets, big stars, and all the rottenness that it brings with

The night editor of a newspaper that suddenly had suspended publication had to come home and break the bad news to his wife and three small boys. In fact, this was the second enterprise that, through no fault of his own, had collapsed and stranded him within a year, and he could not disguise his discouragement.

The boys said nothing, but when the editor awoke and walked into the dining room the next morning, he found spread on the table, a poster, with rough lettering that proclaimed, "We believe in you, Dad!" Onto it the three lads had poured the contents of their individual savings banks.

A sturdy lad asked his father, "Do you know if Mary's lamb followed her to school every day?" "That she did," said Father. "And how," pursued the lad, "did it all end?" "They finally separated," said Father. "The lamb graduated."

Thanks For All

You've Done"

Once in awhile we get a real lift of spirits when the owner of a property we have sold, or the buyer, goes out of his way to express appreciation for our service. September will mark our first anniversary as a Real Estate office, and we are proud of the clients who have become our iriends this first year. More than "selling" a property, we try to show the right party the right house, and let it sell itself — then we step in to help arrange financing, and otherwise smooth the bumps on the road to home-ownership. Try us — We'll try!

Route 36 Neglect Assailed At Rally

An appeal for the creation of additional nursing homes and homes for the aged, along with attacks on Democrats for their alleged neglect of Star Route 36 and the increase in the Maryland sales tax featured a Republican rally last night in Barton.

Some 160 enthuiastic Republican leaders of that area turned up for the rally held in the Barton Fire Hall

Speaking were Robert Little Ebert, candidate for county commissioner; Fred H. Anderson, for House of Delegates, and Howard W. Vandergrift, for Judge of the Orphans Court

Mr. Ebert, a member of the Allegany County Commission on Problems of the Aging, said he has learned through the organization that "we are shirking our responsibilities for the older gen-

200 Beds Needed

He said the commission's studies show there is a need for an additional 200 beds in nursing homes in Allegany County.

'We must plan and encourage the creation of additional nursing homes, and homes for the aged, right here in Allegany County and the closer to home the better."

Mr. Ebert promised to promote and encourage the development of state-approved, modern, for the aged within the county

"This is a responsibility all of us must share," he said, and "we must find ways for those who sheltered and protected us as children . . . to live out the final years . . . in contemplation of the larger life to come.

Actors Need To Be Friends In Fenster - Dickens Show

Harry Dickens and Arch Fenster may go down in history as the two best friends since Damon and Pythias. And the former are a lot funnier than the latter.

Harry Dickens and Arch Fenster are the character names of the new ABC-TV series seen Friday nights, with its correct title, "I'm Dickens . . . He's Fenster. In the title roles are John Astin as Dickens and Marty Ingels as Fenster. And to the casual observer, they seem the most ludicrous pair imaginable to become close friends.

This writer is not a casual observer, however. And Astin and Ingels have become as close as Dickens and Fenster, not alone because of propinquity working closely together five or six days a week.

"We hadda become good friends." says Ingels in that gravelly-throated voice with which he was born. "Leonard Stern told Leonard Stern is the creator and producer of "I'm Dickens . . . He's Fenster." He had been cerebrating over the idea for years, during the time he was writing for Jackie Gleason.

"I wanted to do a story about carpenters," Stern says simply. "Because I was always intrigued with the way people are intrigued at watching carpenters work. Walk down any city street past a building site. Passersby are constantly observing. And I felt too there could be more comedic possibilities in the occupational hazards of carpenters than, say, bookkeepers.'

And so, throughout all his other writing assignments, Stern contemplated the antics of his brainchildren-carpenters, and finally, about a year ago, the idea started to fall into place.

With the promise of a TV series held out before them like a carrot to a hungry rabbit, the men allowed as how they could indeed make like Damon and Pythias.

"I'm Dickens . . He's Fenster" is shot with the threecamera technique originated by Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz about a decade ago with their original, "I Love Lucy." In fact, Dickens and Fenster is shot at the same

Says Astin, "Marty and Emmaline and I often get together on weekends to work on script when there's a particularly difficult story coming up. So we can understand why Leonard wanted us to be friends-you can't work in such close proximity if you don't get along.

I'M . . . HE'S-John Astin and Marty Ingels act out the title of "I'm He's Fenster," with Astin as Dickens and Ingels as Fenster in the new ABC-TV comedy series scheduled Fridays from 9

Actors Need To Be Friends In Fenster - Dickens Show

Harry Dickens and Arch Fenster may go down in history as the two best friends since Damon and Pythias. And the former are a lot funnier than the latter.

Harry Dickens and Arch Fenster are the character names of the new ABC-TV series seen Friday nights, with its correct title, "I'm Dickens . . . He's Fenster. In the title roles are John Astin as Dickens and Marty Ingels as Fenster. And to the casual observer, they seem the most ludicrous pair imaginable to become close friends.

This writer is not a casual observer, however. And Astin and Ingels have become as close as Dickens and Fenster, not alone because of propinquity working closely together five or six days a week

"We hadda become good friends." says Ingels in that gravelly-throated voice with which he was born. "Leonard Stern told us to." Leonard Stern is the creator and producer of "I'm Dickens . . . He's Fenster." He had been cerebrating over the idea for years, during the time he was writing for Jackie Gleason

"I wanted to do a story about carpenters." Stern says simply "Because I was always intrigued with the way people are intrigued at watching carpenters work. Walk down any city street past a building site. Passersby are constantly observing. And I felt too there could be more comedic possibilities in the occupational hazards of carpenters than, say, bookkeepers.'

And so, throughout all his other writing assignments, Stern contemplated the antics of his brainchildren-carpenters, and finally, about a year ago, the idea started to fall into place.

With the promise of a TV series held out before them like a carrot to a hungry rabbit, the men allowed as how they could indeed make like Damon and Pythias.

"I'm Dickens . He's Fenster" is shot with the threecamera technique originated by Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz about a decade ago with their original, "I Love Lucy." In fact, Dickens and Fenster is shot at the same

Says Astin. "Marty and Emmaline and I often get together on weekends to work on script when there's a particularly difficult story coming up. So we can understand why Leonard wanted us to be friends-you can't work in such close proximity if you don't get along.

Nostalgia Takes Hold Of Writer Prior To Don Ameche Interview

By JAMES J. NAGEL

As we sat in the reception room at the NBC studios in Rockefeller Center waiting to interview Don Ameche, host of "International Showtime" (7:30-8:30 p. m. Fridays NBC-TV), our thoughts turned almost to a point of nostalgia . . . those goneby radio shows "The First Nighter," "Grand Hotel," and "The Chase and Sanborn Hour" and those wonderful movies, "In Old Chicago," "Lillian Russell,"
